

Did You Know ...

A gospel song is dominating the playlists in nightclubs and bars in east and central Africa..

MTV

Africa host Emukule Ekirapa, also known as VJ Kule, reports that the song "Tobina," which means "to dance" has been a smash hit in clubs, bars and churches in East and Central Africa. The upbeat praise song by Congo gospel artist Daddy Owen has secular and Christian listeners swaying to its worshipful lyrics. Whether the listener is in church or a club, VJ Kule says the song's message is clear: "Thank God for the beautiful life that you are living. Thank God for your health. Thank God for your family. Once God has sorted all of that, the only thing left to do is dance and praise Him."
