

Donald Trump and the Project 2025 Mystery

What on earth is Project 2025, and why has it become such a talking point for the presidential elections? According to former President Donald Trump, he knows nothing about it, other than that it represents the worst of the radical Right. In contrast, immediately after being endorsed by President Biden to take his spot in the elections, Vice President Harris said, “My intention is to earn and win this nomination. I will do everything in my power to unite the Democratic Party—and unite our nation—to defeat Donald Trump and his extreme Project 2025 agenda.”

We now have two questions: What is Project 2025? And why has it become a political football? (One news report claims that in the last week, Project 2025 has appeared in more online searches than Taylor Swift!)

To indicate just how deeply Trump has distanced himself from this project, he said over the weekend, “Some on the Right, the severe Right, came up with this Project 2025. You have the radical Left and you have the radical Right. You read some of the things, and they are extreme. They are seriously extreme.”

He also stated, “I don’t know what [obscenity] it is, this Project 25. I don’t know anything about it. I don’t want to know anything about it.”

On July 5, two weeks earlier, he posted on his Truth social network: “I have no idea who is behind it. I disagree with some of the things they’re saying and some of the things they’re saying are absolutely ridiculous and abysmal.”

Talk about dissing something.

In stark contrast, a July 15 article by Paul Krugman in The New York Times is titled, "Don't Lose Sight of Project 2025. That's the Real Trump."

Per Krugman, "For anyone new to this: Project 2025 is a blueprint by and for some of Trump's close allies, put together by the Heritage Foundation, to ensure that if Trump wins in November, MAGA will hit the ground running."
