

Donald Trump's Campaign Has Unleashed a Blitzkrieg on Hillary Clinton

Republican presidential nominee Donald Trump's final prosecution of the case against his Democrat opponent, Hillary Clinton, has begun—and it's nothing short of an all-out blitzkrieg.

The Ads

The Trump campaign released several new ads, even buying ad time during Wednesday night's decisive Game 7 of the World Series. Here is a summary of the new ads that just hit the airwaves:

- Choice—outlines the clear choice voters have on Election Day between Hillary Clinton's future of stagnation, and Donald Trump's vision for a better, stronger, and more prosperous America. This ad serves as Mr. Trump's closing argument to the American people, and will air in major markets across the country.
- Stand—this radio spot is a direct appeal to evangelical voters featuring Liberty University President Jerry Falwell Jr. It will air on Christian Radio stations in the battleground states of Florida, Ohio, North Carolina, Colorado, Iowa, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Wisconsin, Michigan and Arizona.
- Corruption—hits Hillary Clinton for her documented pattern of pay to play politics and the newest FBI investigation into her reckless handling of confidential emails. This ad serves as a part of Mr. Trump's closing argument to the American people, and will air in major markets across the country.
- United—a call for all Republicans to unite behind Donald Trump's positive movement against the broken Washington, D.C., establishment. This ad serves as a part of Mr. Trump's closing argument to the American people, and will air in major markets across the country.

The new ads began airing Wednesday all across the country. The "Choice" and "Corruption" ads were among those that ran during the baseball game.

"The vast majority of Americans feel the country is headed in the wrong direction, but that is all about to change," campaign spokesman Jason Miller said. "We are excited to take our message directly to the millions of sports fans watching the World Series to let them know that they have a clear choice in this election, and Mr. Trump is the one who will fight for them. He is the leader who will make America great again."

The Surrogates

While Trump and his running mate, Indiana Gov. Mike Pence, can each only be in one place at a time, their small army of surrogates have been unleashed upon the country, taking the Trump-Pence message everywhere.

The campaign released the following surrogate schedule, with plans to announce additional events as Election Day draws near:

At an event Wednesday in Michigan, Ivanka Trump drew several hundred people, even though she is not on the ballot Nov. 8. Meanwhile, Democratic presidential nominee Hillary Clinton's running mate, U.S. Sen. Tim Kaine—who is on the ballot—drew just 15 people for a rally in a key Democratic stronghold in the battleground state of Iowa.
