

Dr. Michael Brown: Christians Need to Rise Up

Dr. Michael Brown, the acclaimed Messianic Jewish author, radio host, and biblical scholar, says it's time for Christians to stand for what is right.

In an interview this week with OneNewsNow, he said Christians need to demand their pastors equip them to handle the sensitive issue of "gay rights" outside church doors. The unspoken mantra of "gay activists," he said, is 'We will intimidate and we will manipulate until you capitulate.'

"Our answer has to be we will not capitulate," he added.

Brown said Bible-believing Christians must encourage their elected representatives to "stand by and fight" for the Judeo-Christian principles America was founded upon. Particularly as the presidential election approaches in November.

"We need to call our elected officials who are standing and say we've got your back; we're voting for you, we're standing with you," he said. "We need to pray for the upcoming elections that God will raise up godly leaders and a godly president to help point us in the right direction."
