

Fact-Based Analysis: What if Kamala Wins?

Jesus told us, “Again I say to you” (Matt. 18:19a). Theologian Clair Davis reminds us, “The Christian life is a combination of amnesia and déjà vu. We keep learning what we keep forgetting!”

When upstart Bill Clinton challenged President H.W. Bush, his chief strategist, James Carville, kept repeating to campaign workers, “It’s the economy, stupid!”

When Kamala Harris appeared on “The View” and was asked if she would have done anything differently than Biden, she answered, “I can’t think of anything I would’ve done differently.”

Did she so quickly forget?

Review the Record

On Day 1 when Biden took office, he signed executive orders restricting our energy industry, causing a chain reaction that resulted in skyrocketing prices throughout the trucking industry, then on to gas and grocery suppliers. “Build Back Better” and “Bidenomics” (which Harris cheered with enthusiasm) caused inflation to skyrocket from 1.4% to 8%. Remember:

Gas up 38.7%. Electricity up 31.3%. Fuel oil up 37.4%. Airfare up 34.5%. Hotels up 42.4%. Groceries up 22.1%. Eggs up 69.7%. Baby food up 31%. Food up 69.7%. Rent up 22.9% Transportation up 31.1%. Car insurance up 56.5%. Average weekly earnings down 3.4%.

See the Storm?

If you have followed my weekly commentaries for the past four years, you know that I predicted with certainty that if Biden and Harris were elected, their economic policies and governance would result in catastrophic consequences. As a "watchman on the wall," all I did was interpret signs (Matt. 16:3-4).

Here's the brutal reality My warning tragically came true, with the Biden-Harris administration bringing crippling consequences for perhaps decades to come. Already Harris and her progressive partners have thrown out any voter ID requirement in 13 states (California, New York, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Maryland, Maine, Minnesota, Nevada, Hawaii, New Jersey, Vermont, New Mexico and Washington, D.C.).

With an ache in my heart, I say this is an "I told you so" moment as we survey the storm damage crushing our lives. The apostle Paul had a similar experience during his voyage to Rome as a prisoner, when he predicted a hurricane-like storm that came to pass as their ship broke apart. He said it was an "I told you so" moment. The crew members survived and were jolted to finally listen to him.
