

Father Fights for Daughter's Faith in Upcoming Film

Following the surprise popularity of God's Not Dead and other hit faith-based movies this year comes A Matter of Faith. The upcoming film tackles the evolution vs. creationism debate through the tale of a Christian father who decides to fight for what he believes and those he loves when his college freshman daughter finds herself doubting her beliefs after being challenged by a popular biology professor. Channeling a host of current topics through a personal and relatable story of family, friendship and faith, A Matter of Faith looks to make a splash when it hits theaters next month.

Check out the trailer below: