

Feeling Far From God? Remind Your Heart of These Powerful Truths

In a life-transforming conversation on Live Your Best Life With Liz Wright on the Charisma Podcast Network, Alberto Rivera shares how we don't need to draw near to God because He is already within us. This revolutionizes the way we worship. We aren't trying to get somewhere; we are already with Him, and we worship from that place.

Wright and Rivera talk about their recent project together, in which Rivera created a beautiful soundtrack to the words of Wright's audiobook, Reflecting God. Wright shares how listening to each track has been so powerful, and there's an immense impact from the anointing on Rivera's life. Rivera shares that it's a grace on his life to help people connect with the reality of their oneness with God.

Rivera often encourages people to not see God like they're looking at Him from the outside but are looking from within Him, seeing from the inside out. We are already engulfed in Him and we have access to all of Him and heaven now! This lifestyle all stems from faith, by simply believing. Rivera shares that the Father isn't looking for worship; He is looking for worshippers because worship is who we are, not something we do.

From the awareness of our complete oneness with Him, we begin to co-reign and release His sound and intention over people, situations and places. As Wright shares, our words can be containers that carry the intention of God's heart. Instead of our prayer life always being a cry for help, we can realize that we have been positioned in powerful authority and brought into union with the Creator Himself. We can governmentally enforce the kingdom from this place of union and release God's light through the sound that comes out of us. Sit back into this awareness today and engage with the one who lives within you!
