

Filmmaker Darren Wilson Raises Over $77K in 24 Hours for New 'Holy Ghost' Film

In a time when Kickstarter campaigns seem to be launching every moment, it takes something truly unique to rise above and gain immediate attention. Now in their second campaign with Kickstarter, Darren Wilson and the Wanderlust Productions team appear to have filled that niche, raising nearly 40 percent of their $200,000 goal in less than 24 hours to fund the 2014 release Holy Ghost.

"Our films have always struck a chord with people, but what makes this one exciting (and, honestly, terrifying)," Wilson says, "is that the whole process of making the film will be played out, live, to everyone who chooses to be a part of this journey."

Wilson's earlier films, the God Adventure trilogy—consisting of Finger of God, Furious Love and Father of Lights—led him to the corners of the globe, seeking how God is moving and working in the lives of the faithful. Now, with Holy Ghost, Wilson sets off on his most challenging adventure yet: trying to capture a balanced yet exciting picture of the Holy Spirit and how He is working in the world today.

While Holy Ghost will by no means attempt to explain every aspect of this often misunderstood member of the Trinity, the film will be one man's journey to gain a better understanding of both the power and mystery of this Person of God.

Like Wilson's other films, Holy Ghost seeks to engage a worldwide audience. From the alleyways of Brazil to the gates of the Vatican, this film will scope the many religions and belief systems in our world today.

Never one to play by the typical rules of filmmaking, Wilson hopes this Kickstarter campaign makes history. Through it, Wilson will offer an unprecedented look into the making of the film and will encourage supporters to help determine what questions he asks, what content he films and even how the film is put together. Campaign supporters are allowed to experience far more than just watching a movie in 2014.
