

Franklin Graham: This Shows How Morally Warped Our Politicians Are

The military should be investing in training soldiers and building a defense. But our government may divert up to $8.4 million a year of much-needed funds for the gender reassignments for troops.

Yes, really. Sort of makes you wonder if gender-confused people will flock to the military for a free ride on the gender reassignment front like they do on the college education front.

Franklin Graham is up in arms about the news.

When he read about the new government spending program for gender reassignment and hormone therapy for military personnel, the evangelist had two words followed by a pointed question:

“I’m disgusted! Aren’t you?”

‘This is the kind of immoral garbage President Obama and his administration are allowing to be put in place in our country,” Graham says. “$8.4 million a year—with all the things our military needs—can you believe that? Things like this need to be stopped. It just shows you how morally warped our politicians have become.”

What would it take to stop the government from funding the perversion train?
