

GOOD NEWS: Luna the Life-Saving Dog Rescues Family

An emotional support dog recently went above and beyond her regular call of duty, rescuing her entire family from deadly danger.

Samantha Griffin of Marion, Indiana, adopted Luna six months ago to help her cope with PTSD. Luna would go on to do much more than that.

The two-year-old Husky stopped Samantha from going to sleep last month when she felt a migraine coming on.

Samantha sensed something was wrong and took her family outside before the carbon monoxide detector went off.

"If she hadn't gotten me outside, I would have fallen asleep in here, like completely fallen asleep, and probably wouldn't have woke up," Samantha told WRTV.
