

Grace Over Judgment: Get Ready Now for This New Harvest

We stand at a pivotal moment in history. There is an unprecedented hunger for truth and the gospel, and a huge harvest of souls is ripe. But a pressing question stands: Are we ready?

When people flood into our churches seeking hope, truth and transformation, will they encounter the love of Christ, or judgment and condemnation? This question is far from hypothetical—it challenges us to examine our hearts and actions as we prepare for the coming harvest.

Lessons From the Jesus Revolution

The Jesus Revolution of the 1970s offers a powerful example. When hippies, led by Lonnie Frisbee, began attending Pastor Chuck Smith's church, many religious members resisted. The newcomers didn't fit the mold—they looked different, spoke differently and broke from the standard church norms. Yet when believers stepped out of their comfort zones and embraced these seekers with Christ's love, revival broke out. Thousands came to faith, shaping a generation and leaving an enduring legacy of transformed lives.

This story reminds us: The harvest doesn't always look like we expect. Are we prepared to welcome those who challenge our preconceived notions? Or will we repeat the mistakes of the past, allowing judgment and fear to delay or derail the work God wants to do?
