

Hatteras Girl

Alice J. Wisler | BethanyHouse

Jackie Donovan, 29, has two dreams: marry a wonderful man and own a bed and breakfast in Outer Banks in North Carolina. In the meantime, she works for Lighthouse Views magazine and reluctantly endures blind dates set up by well-meaning but clueless relatives.

The bed and breakfast that Jackie especially dreams of owning is the Bailey Place, where she spent many enjoyable childhood moments.

When she meets Davis Erickson, the owner, Jackie is sure God is answering both her prayers at the same time. But Jackie learns of disturbing details about Davis' past and begins to question her ability to judge a person's character. If she wants know the truth, she'll risk losing a chance to fulfill her dream. Will it be worth it?
