

Have You Dismissed Yourself From the Table?

The Lord sets tables for you in life, ministry and relationships. But are you dismissing yourself from the tables you were called to because you feel unqualified?

Sometimes our insecurities can open up the door to the enemy to lie to us, and we can believe those lies. Believing such lies can alter the way we see ourselves. Our identity is tied to our choices and behavior. When we don't see ourselves as worthy or as Christ sees us, then we miss opportunities. We miss the tables that were set for us because we don't believe we deserve them, and we miss God's goodness and plans for our lives.

It's important to know who you are, so you know your place at the table! Join me and my special guest—my spiritual mother, Real Talk Kim—on this episode of Kristal Klear on the Charisma Podcast Network as we discuss more on this important topic. {eoa}

Kristal Klear, formally known as Kristal Clark, author of Shattered Glass, approaches life with vision, sophistication and confidence that inspires everyone she meets. She confronts the plague of sexual abuse and human trafficking head on through fundraising, education and entrepreneurial enterprises. She has also joined a team of leaders engaging in awareness campaigns to wake up cities to hope and to help those exploited through human trafficking. Her newly founded organization, Rock Paper Scissors, specializes in ministering to the mentally and emotionally abused by providing a safe place to share, heal and spread awareness.
