

Here's Why LGBT Supporters Are Called Homofascists

Many Christians have been warning for years that the radical homosexual activist lobby is made up of Christian-hating fascists who are in rebellion against both God and nature, who are hell-bent on criminalizing Christianity and pushing to the fringes anyone who publicly acknowledges natural human sexuality and the age-old, immutable institution of legitimate marriage as created by God.

Sadly, many people, even many Christians, think that I and others are using hyperbole when we refer to this sexual anarchist LGBT movement as "homofascist" or the "Gaystapo." I hope you'll think again. It's time to wake up and smell the impending anti-Christian persecution. It's fully at hand.

BarbWire contributor Laurie Higgins, commenting on the Washington Examiner story below, summed it up well in an email:

"CEO and co-founder of Mozilla (and inventor of JavaScript) Brendan Eich is forced to resign because of his $1,000 donation to Prop 8 six years ago. So, I guess it's semi-official: American citizens who believe marriage is inherently sexually complementary cannot work in America—not even in their own companies. First Amendment: ."

Reports the Washington Examiner:

"Mozilla CEO Brendan Eich resigned under pressure after gay rights activists demanded that he step down or recant his support of traditional marriage laws.

"Eich donated $1,000 to support Proposition 8, the California ballot initiative that amended the state's constitution to define marriage as between one man and one woman.

“‘I don’t want to talk about my personal beliefs because I kept them out of Mozilla all these 15 years we’ve been going,’ Eich told The Guardian. ‘I don’t believe they’re relevant.’

“That wasn’t an option. ‘CEO Brendan Eich should make an unequivocal statement of support for marriage equality,’ a Credoaction petition signed by almost 75,000 people said, per The Inquirer. ‘If he cannot, he should resign. And if he will not, the board should fire him immediately.’

“When asked if his beliefs about marriage should constitute a firing offense the way racism or sexism does, Eich argued that these religious beliefs—and beliefs popular as of 2008—should not be used as a basis for dismissal.

” ‘I don’t believe that’s true, on the basis of what’s permissible to support or vote on in 2008,’ he told CNET. ‘It’s still permissible. Beliefs that are protected, that include political and religious speech, are generally not something that can be held against even a CEO. I understand there are people who disagree with me on this one.’”

Oh, oh, Mr. Eich, how wrong you are. That’s the America we used to live in. That’s the America of our founding. Welcome to “Amerika.” Homofascism is the order of the day and Christian “intolerance” simply will not be tolerated. That was before we became the godless, wicked nation we are today. A once-great nation that now takes pride in calling “evil good and good evil.”

And here’s the kicker: Eich’s position on so-called gay marriage in 2008 is identical to none other than one Barack Hussein Obama’s. While running for president that year he said, “I believe marriage is between a man and a woman. I am not in favor of gay marriage.”

Off with his head! Where are the calls for Obama’s resignation? Well, there are none because he got with the homofascist program. In a clear effort to raise funds for re-election, he pulled a 180.

Is anyone surprised?

Continues the Examiner:

“On Thursday, Mozilla announced that he had resigned. ‘Mozilla prides itself on being held to a different standard and, this past week, we didn’t live up to it,’ executive chairwoman Mitchell Baker wrote. ‘We know why people are hurt and angry, and they are right: it’s because we haven’t stayed true to ourselves. We didn’t act like you’d expect Mozilla to act. We didn’t move fast enough to engage with people once the controversy started. We’re sorry. We must do better.’”

Do you see what’s happening? Did you read that? That’s fear—deathly fear. Fear of a radical, hateful, intolerant, obnoxious, fascist, evil and power-crazed group of sex-obsessed anarchists who demand that we all affirmatively celebrate their deviant and self-destructive sexual sins.

Christians, buckle up. Your whole world is about to change. The Rainbowshirts are emboldened and they’ve broken out the long knives: “Therefore pride is their necklace; they clothe themselves with violence” (Ps. 73:6, NIV).

They smell blood in the water. I’ve often said that these folks want those who speak biblical truth about human sexuality and legitimate marriage either 1) dead, 2) imprisoned or, if they can have neither of these, 3) marginalized to the point where they can’t even support their families.

Check No. 3 off the list. I guess they’re working backwards.

Freedom is hanging on by a thread, America, and it is those who worship the sin of Sodom that are determined to finish it off once and for all.

Matt Barber (@jmattbarber on Twitter) is an author, columnist, cultural analyst and an attorney concentrating in constitutional law. Having retired as an undefeated heavyweight professional boxer, Matt has taken his fight from the ring to the culture war.