

How a Todd White Video Stopped Suicide in Its Tracks

There's something about Todd White that just draws you in. Maybe it's his long hair, his kind eyes, his passionate voice. Maybe it's his enthusiasm for the gospel.

When he preaches, people listen. He has the boldness of a lion. If the Holy Spirit speaks, White listens, and then relays the message.

In an interview with Charisma, White shared some incredible stories about how the Lord used him.

"I'm watching the body of Christ wake up," White says. "And honestly, God's waking up the sleeping giant. ... When God gets a hold of their hearts, they don't want another history lesson. They want to do it. They want to actively engage and they want to actually step on the devil's neck that maneuvered and manipulated them in years that they've been astray."

Through White's ministry, people are learning to grow in the Word so they can, "Destroy the very kingdom of darkness to try to manipulate their life."

People who have been set free from the spirit of suicide see others set free from thoughts of killing themselves.

White says the ministry frequently receives emails that say: "I was getting ready to pull the trigger and all, then the YouTube video that you have came on. And it saved my life.' And the whole family testifies. 'I got my daddy back. Thank you.' And we're seeing this like, so it's so crazy. We're getting emails from even from prisons that say, 'Our inmates have been overwhelmed by the gospel.'"

That's just the tip of the iceberg. Listen to the podcast to
