

How God Is Raising Up Change Agents to Bring the Kingdom Back to Schools

Have you ever heard of the separation between church and state? How about the 1962 court case “Engel vs. Vitale” that resulted in the removal of prayer from schools?

Many believe this was the starting point for the decline of public education in our nation. This is something that has left many Christians feeling hopeless when it comes to the education of our future generations.

In the midst of what might look like a stronghold in our public education system, the Lord is raising up change agents who are bringing the kingdom back into our schools.

Join Will Ford as he interviews Suzanne Weathers, the principal of a middle school in Dallas, Texas.

Suzanne is shedding light on the realities of prayer in school and the role Christian educators play in defending their students’ right to pray. She is also the author of the book Change Our Schools Through Prayer.

In this episode, you will be informed, equipped and empowered with the truth behind prayer in schools and the impact it is making in the lives of educators and students.
