

How the Neem Tree Fulfills Revelation 22:2

Pam Stanford suffered from mercury and fluoride poisoning to the point of being very ill. But the great physician used the tropical neem tree to help heal her.

Now known as “The Neem Queen,” Stanford says she is “passionate about the name and the neem.”

Stanford and her family own the Monticello, Florida-based business All About Neem. Although the neem tree is found in India and China among other places, the company makes all of its products in the U.S. The All About Neem line includes products from every part of the tree, from its oil to its bark to its leaves, and, Stanford says, they increase one’s general health and help heal the body of a variety of illnesses.

Reflecting on her state of health 20 years ago, she is thankful she survived.

“It was almost like a truck hit me, so then when you survive, you say, ‘How can I get better?’ How do you get rid of heavy metals, parasites, pathogens, fungi, especially when you’re not feeling good?”

In search of continued good health, Stanford came across a natural herb.

“It’s known as the ultimate herb, the wonder plant, the village pharmacy, the free tree, the cure of all ailments,” she says of neem. She also says it’s called “the tree of life” and a “tree for solving global problems.”

After a month and a half of taking the Neem products Stanford ordered, her health improved.

“I noticed an increase in energy,” she says. “I felt good. I looked good.” Her husband also took the products with excellent results in his bloodwork, she said.

Stanford says she was called to create the best neem products in the world “for God’s people, those who call upon His name.” She was inspired “to accomplish Revelation 22:2,” which says in part, “The leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations.”
