

How to Watch the Stop Iran Rally Live at 1 p.m. EST Today

Americans have little voice in their government—nowhere less than in foreign policy. Yet today, average Americans will gather on the West Lawn of the U.S. Capitol to try to reverse the Iran deal President Obama negotiated with the mullahs of Tehran.

Dozens of distinguished speakers—including three presidential candidates—will speak at the Stop the Iran Nuclear Deal Rally beginning at 1 p.m. EST.

Donald Trump, Ted Cruz and Jim Gilmore—all 2016 Republican presidential hopefuls—will headline the event, hosted by the Tea Party Patriots.

Sarah Palin will have a featured role.

Congressional leaders like Steve King, Trent Franks, Tim Huelskamp Louie Gohmert, Mark Meadows, Marsha Blackburn and Dave Brat—the man whose underdog victory over Majority Leader Eric Cantor last year rocked the political world—will speak out about their role in the process.

Grass-roots Americans will be represented by Glenn Beck, Gary Bauer of the Campaign for Working Families and Penny Nance of Concerned Women for America.

Niger Innis, the national spokesman for the historic civil rights organization the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), will speak, among many others.

You can watch live at 1 p.m. EST at this link.