"These elections are crucial for the people of Israel and for the entire world. We pray that the American people succeed in the elections and that the elected leader will be one who recognizes values of justice and morality, connected to the values of the Bible. We pray that whoever is chosen will acknowledge the place of the people of Israel in the Land of Israel, as this is the path to world peace and overcoming the global evil that threatens the free world," Israel's Arutz Sheva said.
