

‘I Would Love to Share My Faith and My Family’: Pentecostal Pastor, ‘The Voice’ Winner Todd Tilghman Opens Up

Todd Tilghman is a pastor, husband and father of eight children. He’s also the winner of The Voice 2020.

If you’re a fan of NBC’s The Voice competition, you know when contestants try out, they’re praying that just one of the judges will turn around and pick them. During Tilghman’s audition, all four judges swung around in their seats. So it’s no wonder he wound up the 2020 winner.

Tilghman chose Blake Shelton as his coach when the show premiered in February. Prior to the show, he said he had only ever sung at church.

In the finale, where each singer performed from home, Tilghman wowed the judges with Christian band Mercy Me’s popular hit “I Can Only Imagine.”

“My wife, Brooke, told me I would regret it if I didn’t go,” he said. “Thank God for her and thank God I changed my mind and decided to go. It’s been like a dream. Everyone keeps telling me to just soak it in, but it’s hard to do because you just can’t believe you are really there.”
