

Is America Coming Apart or Coming into Revival?

All of us committed Christians long for a fresh move of God in our generation, especially during these trying times. As Thomas Paine, American patriot, said in 1776, "These are times that try men's souls."

Another quote that is relevant in our current situation is from Charles Dickens at the beginning of "Tale of Two Cities": "It was the best of times and it was the worst of times."

So should we simply pray and wait for the next great move of God? Or do we recognize the brutal reality that America is coming apart and we must be engaged, resisting all passivity in this critical hour?

Take 10 and invest it wisely to stay on the cutting edge and cooperating with the purpose of God in our generation!
