

Isaiah Saldivar Breaks Down Police Officer's Demonic Manifestation

In a new reaction video, Isaiah Saldivar breaks down the footage of a police officer who killed Sonya Massey, uncovering the spiritual elements behind this tragedy.

Massey first called the police after being fearful of a potential prowler around the outside of her home. Eventually, the officers went inside her house where everything went wrong from there.

One of the first things that Saldivar points out is how everything started off cordially. Massey asked the officers if they could hand her the Bible in the living room, and they asked for her ID. Saldivar then points out something that many people have missed watching this footage.

"He points to the stove, you see there's a pot on the stove of boiling water, she's probably making noodles or something, who knows. He points and you can't hear it because he mumbles and the subtitles are just auto subtitles and says 'go check on the fire. Go get that, get that off the stove.' So he tells her; she did not go get the pot," Saldivar points out.

Saldivar further notes how Massey goes says that she is going to put the pot in the sink and the officer, Sean Grayson, starts laughing.

"He implies, 'I'm going away from your hot, steaming water,' implying that she's going to throw it on him. She has no intentions of throwing it on him. She's literally taking it to the sink not even looking at him," Saldivar says.

After the officer's implication that she would throw water on him, Massey then says "I rebuke you in the name of Jesus." As Saldivar points out, the rebuke appears to be against the assumption that she would throw the water at Grayson.

Right after Massey's rebuke, the officer starts cursing at her, telling her that she better not or else he would shoot her in the face.
