

JFK's Granddaughter Tatiana Schlossberg Laid to Rest: Full Details of Her Funeral Revealed

The Kennedy family is saying their final farewells to JFK's granddaughter, Tatiana Schlossberg, who passed away at only the age of 35 on Dec. 30, 2025.

In a report from People, Schlossberg's family is laying her to rest today, Jan. 5, at The Church of St. Ignatius of Loyola in New York City.

Schlossberg was the daughter of Caroline Kennedy and Edwin Schlossberg, and was married to George Moran, with whom she had two young children. She passed away due to acute myeloid leukemia, a diagnosis she only recently revealed in an article she wrote last year for The New Yorker.

As People noted, attendees at Schlossberg's funeral included her parents, her husband, George Moran; her children; her siblings, Rose and Jack; and Joe Kennedy III and Kerry Kennedy. Other famous faces seen coming into her service included wedding dress designer Carolina Herrera and talk-show host David Letterman.

Schlossberg was raised in a Catholic and Jewish household and saw her children as the bright avenue of hope in the middle of her terminal diagnosis. During this time, continue to lift the Kennedy family in prayer as they mourn this precious loss.
