

John Kilpatrick: God Is Raising Up a New Breed of Prophets

John Kilpatrick says today's prophets are trying to communicate without modern technology, and that's why the message is failing to reach its true potential.

But it won't be that way for long.

Kilpatrick says the Holy Spirit told him He's about to raise up a generation of prophets who will have "such a clear, concise word that presidents and parliaments and news organizations will call them in and ask them questions and they will be so accurate they can predict things almost to the minute."

Watch the video to see what he means.