Is it a coincidence that 2020 ushered in a devastating pandemic, division, civil disorder, a paralyzing lockdown, and an economic collapse rivaling the Great Depression—all at the same time? As Cahn reveals in The Harbingers of Things to Come, the downward spiral of the United States and of much of the Western world was prophesied long ago in ancient biblical texts now made clear.

These connections can be seen in the nature of these calamities as well as the timing of their appearance— from the year, the season and the month.

It can be seen in the place of the pandemic striking, its specific connection to the state of New York and to New York City.

It can be seen in a 50-year biblical mystery that carries with it the principle of restitution.

It can be seen in the exact days of its peaking in specific areas.

It can even be seen in parallels with biblical references that can be described only as eerie.

Judgment can be a haunting proposition to process and understand, but Cahn delicately opens the door for viewers to grasp these revelations and their place in current U.S. and world events. Cahn compares the judgment of the nation of Israel with that of America.

Cahn continued, “America was founded after the pattern of ancient Israel. And so if it turns away from God and repeats the ancient act, then judgments that came upon ancient Israel will reappear. And so of all nations of the earth, the plague centered its wrath on America.”

The Harbingers of Things to Come reveals mysteries such as this one, as well as other ancient secrets that point to more great shakings of America.

The Harbingers of Things to Come will be in theaters across America on Thursday, May 12, 2022, through Fathom Events. Cahn takes audiences on an epic journey from the shores of New England to the steps of the Supreme Court; from a boat on the Hudson River all the way to the pedestal of the Statue of Liberty, to explore the ancient mysteries that are impacting modern-day America.
