

Jonathan Cahn Offers Prophetic Insight to Paris Terrorist Attacks

When a nation turns away from God, says Rabbi Jonathan Cahn, its enemies begin to rise.

This could perhaps be the case for the recent Paris attacks, which left 129 dead, hundreds more injured and thousands if not millions more terrified of the radical Islamic threat.

“That word appointed for 9/11, Hamas, means passion for them. Well they are passionate for evil,” Cahn tells Jim Bakker. “How much more should God’s people be that passionate and more passionate for God for the gospel?”

So how should we respond? Watch the video to see.
