

Jonathan Cahn: We Don't Understand What God Does at All Times

Believers don't always understand why God is following a certain course or asking us for a specific task, Rabbi Jonathan Cahn says.

We need to trust God, despite what appearances lead us to believe. Take, for example, Abraham.

God asked him to give up his son, and Abraham agreed. The father of Israel could have refused.

"But he trusted," Cahn says. "And once he did, (God) said, 'No, Abraham, that was just a test. That's not what I wanted, I wanted to see your heart, I wanted to see you stand.'"
