

Joni Lamb's Stunning Prophetic Vision Involving Marcus Lamb

Sometimes God gives us a vision that helps to shift our focus onto the things that matter.

In a recent video posted by Daystar, Joni Lamb revealed how God gave her a prophetic vision about her late husband, and the three things God uncovered to her through this encounter.

"This has been a couple of months ago, actually, I had a vision, a kind of a waking heard the voice of my late husband, Marcus Lamb," Joni shares.

While she did not see Marcus in the dream-like vision, she heard his voice. It was then through this vision that she heard three distinct things she needed to know.

"He said three things to me," Lamb says. "The first thing he said was, 'Joni, what was the number one thing that I taught you?' And immediately I said, 'persistence.' And he said, 'Yes.' he said 'You must be persistent.'"

The second thing Marcus shared with Joni in the vision is that it is okay for her to remind God of the promises He made to her.

"The second thing he said to me was, 'It's okay to remind God about those things that He's promised,'" Lamb says.

While we don't have to keep asking and begging God the things that He's promised to give us, Lamb points out that we can remind God of the conversations we've had with Him about the good and faithful things He's promised for our lives.

The last thing Joni heard in the vision was a watchman's warning for the time we're entering into.

"He said, 'You and Doug need to international event.' He said, 'It's happening at 10 p.m.," says Lamb.

While she didn't initially understand this statement, one of Joni's friends helped her to decode the meaning behind this specific time given to her in the vision.

"She said, '10 p.m. is two hours before the midnight cry,'" Lamb explains.

This call to keep an eye on international events during the end times before the return of Christ is one that we all should heed.

In the parable of the 10 virgins, it was at midnight when the women saw the bridegroom coming, and it was only the wisest ones who had brought oil for their lamps, keeping their light illuminated. The rest had to go and buy oil for their lamps, and by that time it was too late. The bridegroom didn't know who they were. Just as we do not know exactly when Christ will return, we are called to keep watch at all times for the coming of the midnight hour, so that when He arrives His children are prepared.

This call to Joni Lamb can be a call for all of us to stay persistent, hold onto the promises of God and to wait patiently and be prepared for the returning of our Lord.
