

Kylie Jane Kremer Leads Trump Rally, Calls Christians to Spiritual Warfare

"A nationwide prayer group sustains us. So we are passionate in our belief in the power of prayer, but, at the same time, as believers, it's important for us to be seen as well," she added, noting that it's good for the 80 million people Attorney Sidney Powell believes voted for President Donald J. Trump to see the ongoing support.

Powell is lead attorney for the Trump legal team along with former New York City mayor Rudy Giuliani.

"Sidney Powell has proof of massive voter fraud, and we believe the foundation of our country is shaken right now," Kremer said. "It will take time, but believe we will win, and we need to all pray and make our presence known."

Kremer went on to say that while the rally was fighting for all of Trump's supporters, it is also to let "our beloved president know that we have his back, not only in prayer, but in action."

"We were so happy that the president was able to stop by, and we purposely gathered near the White House to be an encouragement and blessing to him," she added.

Bestselling author of God, Trump and COVID-19 Stephen Strang says in his book, God Trump and the 2020 Election, "A second term for President Trump is vital to America's well-being so he can finish the job he has started and fulfill his unique calling as America's political reformer. This lines up with Hebrews 12:1, "Therefore, since we are encompassed with such a great cloud of witnesses, let us also lay aside every weight and the sin that so easily entangles us, and let us run with endurance the race that is set before us.”

Kremer urges all believers to pray for the president’s certification and to attend a rally at noon Saturday, Nov. 21, at the state capitol building in Atlanta, Georgia or at their local state capitols daily at noon.
