

Larry Tomczak's Week in Review: Banning Kids' Cellphones Brings Astounding Results

In the Gospels, Jesus gave one of His sternest warnings about those who manipulate and models for children sinful behavior that causes them to stumble (). Today's 55% of children 8–11 have smartphones and are being led into extremely harmful ways, and parents are waking up and taking action.

After a number of very disturbing events, parents in a locality in Ireland decided they had enough and were going to pull the plug on giving children access to cellphones. It's happening in other countries and in America as well.

The United Nations educational agency recently recommended a ban on cellphones in classrooms across the world.
