

Larry Tomczak's Week in Review: Between Putin and Biden, Who Would Win Most Competent?

The 94th Academy Awards are approaching. What about world leaders—should they be assessed? In Luke 13:6, Jesus gave a parable saying if there was no fruit after a while, dig it, dung it, then destroy it!

Vladimir Putin has shown sociopathic, narcissistic and megalomaniac tendencies. He may be labeled as mad or a monster, but he certainly displays leadership skills on the world stage—albeit for evil.

Joe Biden gets this evaluation from Ron Jackson, former White House physician for Obama and Trump: “The whole world is watching him and he looks weak and confused. He’s not fit to be our president.”

You make your call after a careful examination of five areas.
