

Larry Tomczak's Week in Review: The Most Ignored Factor in a Potential Collapse of America

Historians generally agree on seven contributing factors to the collapse of a nation. You're probably familiar with most of them and are aware America is currently on very thin ice.

Do you know the one most ignored and unknown but presently exploding in America?

The flood came, and only eight survived. Study the fall of Rome, the last days of Pompeii and other civilizations; the parallels are chilling for our current situation.
