

Larry Tomczak's Week in Review: Illegal Immigration Won't Go Away

One of the most controversial and most highly debated subjects for the past decade has been that of illegal immigration. On one side people tell us that Jesus says to be open with our arms to welcome everyone from everywhere. Others point to Scripture and say God wants nations to have borders and people to respect laws to keep a country secure and peaceful. Who is right?

My father was an immigrant from Poland and so proud of his citizenship in America. Millions have entered this nation following the established laws from our Republican and Democrat leadership. Yet something has been put in place of a strategy to flood America with migrants from nations all over the world, simply allowing them to pass through our borders, become citizens and receive entitlement after entitlement. Is this fair? Is this promoting cartel-driven sex smuggling and drug peddling?

Take about seven minutes to become an informed influencer and discover the three biblically based solutions to this dilemma. Watch.
