What do you see that seems to hold women back?

“Well, I think often family. Their husband may not be in favor of it or [he may be] competitive. I think that can be a big problem that has to be settled. The family issue has to be settled.

“[But] if God has called you ... it’s not your problem. It’s His problem. And that’s what the Lord said to me at the very beginning when I was called.

“I said, ‘Lord, women don’t preach. They don’t like women.’ [And] the Lord said to me, ‘That is not your problem; that is mine. Your problem is your faith in Me.’

“Family issues have to be settled, that’s for sure. But if God has called you, He’s going to make a way.”

Do you see many younger women being raised up?

“Yes. Yes. And I think it’s very exciting—and it’s their season too. And that’s delightful to us. ... I know when I was in Bahrain there was a woman there from Nigeria. She is a princess from some tribe. Her first name is Helen. She is being mightily used as a prophetess with healing.

“I see women all over the world. I see women in Pakistan, and Pakistan is not a country that is open to women particularly, but God is opening doors to them.”
