

Mark Driscoll: I Started Ministry Too Young

In an interview with Perry Noble, Mark Driscoll says he failed in several different aspects of his pastoral life, and they can be traced back to specific steps.

“I started ministry, quite frankly, too young,” Driscoll told Noble, saying he should have submitted to a “godly, older mentor.”

The pastor of the new The Trinity Church also revealed some of his regrets.

Watch the video to see what they are.