Parents and Kids Misled by Deceptive Storybook Bible

We truly live in an upside-down world when a Bible for kids is created by a transgender atheist to teach them incorrect theology using LEGOs.

Yet this is exactly what is happening, as author Brendan Powell Smith, a self-described “blue haired transgender lesbian atheist,” has presented this Bible to untold numbers of children.

As reported by The Blaze, “The ‘Bible’ is distributed at vacation Bible schools and sold to believers as containing Scripture—but the book itself was created by an atheist who uses the book to argue against the God of the Bible rather than guide children to Him.

2 Kim Clement Prophecies Highlight US Financial Struggles

The U.S. stock markets are experiencing significant declines, causing concern among investors nationwide. For some, this downturn appears sudden and unpredictable, but others believe it was foretold years ago. The late Christian prophet Kim Clement spoke of such an event as far back as 2005. As the nation grapples with the current financial crisis, Clement's words are gaining renewed attention, prompting many to consider the possible spiritual dimensions of these economic challenges.

Here are the words Clement spoke specifically about banking and the stock exchange during the months of August, September and October:

A miracle shall happen in the banking and the stock exchange. Look to the months of August, September and October. Watch the oil, for God says it's gone hi hi hi, lower lower lower, but God says He's playing a yo-yo game with you.

...God said it's gonna change. It'll change because Greenspan shall go, for God says there is something different that shall come in its place, and there will be an economic revival for this nation and you will not need the Middle East. You will not need the oil, you will not need them, for God says it shall be in the soil of this nation.
