Carl Lentz Rejects 'Disgraced Pastor' Title

Carl and Laura Lentz's self-imposed isolation from the public eye is now officially over, as they have launched their new podcast, "Lights On" and are starting it off talking about their journey thus far.

A lot has been thrown at the couple over the last few years—some warranted, some not—but one thing that Carl Lentz addressed in their very first episode is this: he is not a disgraced pastor.

"Every headline, typically would say, 'disgraced, disgraced pastor,' or 'pastor falls from grace, falls from grace, disgraced pastor,'" Lentz recalls. "What's funny about that is, God bless those people, they don't understand grace. Because you can't fall from grace. You fall into grace."

Our Prayerful Response to Pride Month

It's June, which means that everywhere you turn, you'll be confronted with LGBTQ+ flags, banners, memes and displays. But rather than let this constant, in-your-face display frustrate us, let's turn it into a call for prayer.

That's why I posted this week:

God's 10 Unfailing Promises to Believers

God in his righteousness and mercy gives us promises throughout the Bible, in both the New and the Old Testaments. In a Sunday service broadcast, Todd Coconato shares which Scriptures we can cling to as a promise from the Lord no matter what good or bad circumstances we may be facing.

▪ John 3:16

“For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whoever believes in Him should not perish, but have eternal life.”

This verse is potentially the most recognizable verse that people know by heart. Yet, we sometimes miss out on the greater promise that God is giving us through this verse.
