Grammy-Winning Christian Music Artist Mandisa Dies at 47

Christian singer-songwriter and "American Idol" finalist Mandisa Lynn Hundley, known professionally as Mandisa, has died in her Nashville, Tennessee, home at age 47, according to multiple reports.

The platinum-selling artist and five-time Grammy nominee, born in California, rose to fame when she responded with grace to "American Idol" judge Simon Cowell's critique following her performance on Season 5 of that show. She finished in the top 10 and released her first album, "True Beauty," in 2007. In 2014, she won a Grammy for Best Contemporary Christian Music album for her iconic release, "Overcomer."

Jenny Weaver Plans 'Massive' Baptism of Nearly 2,000 After 200 Accept Christ

BYLINE: Talia Wise/CBN News

After hosting a baptism service on Clearwater Beach, FL this Easter, a former witch turned minister and worship leader is planning to lead one of the biggest revivals in the U.S. this May.

“During baptism, all of a sudden HUNDREDS of birds began flying over us and kept circling around and DOLPHINS jumped out of the water right behind us,” she wrote. “It was as if all of Creation was celebrating what the Lord was doing on the beach!!!”

Weaver later told Fox News, “It is a blessing to be a part of what God is doing in Clearwater, Florida.”

Mark Driscoll Responds to Lindell With Teachings on Jezebel Spirit

After a swarm of occurrences from last week’s Stronger Men’s Conference, Mark Driscoll has since been called off of the platform by John Lindell, reconciled to him and was then asked to publicly repent by James River Church for his comments about the Jezebel spirit being at the conference.

So, what is Mark Driscoll’s response to Lindell and James River Church?

Four days ago, Driscoll wrote on Facebook, “Going to livestream every day this week to help everyone understand the Ahab, Jezebel, and Elijah spirit. The same spirits are at work today. Get ready.”
