Mandisa's Celebration of Life to Be Livestreamed

Christian artist Mandisa Hundley will have her life and legacy celebrated this weekend after her death on Thursday, April 18.

As The Tennessean reported, Hundley, more affectionately known as Mandisa by fans, will be celebrated in two different services. The first service will be held at Fisk University, Mandisa's alma mater on Friday April 25.

Fisk University's Jubilee Singers are also planning to dedicate a song to Mandisa during their commencement ceremony on May 5.

Kanye West Goes Into Adult Entertainment After Leaving Faith

The rumors have been confirmed that Kanye West is going into the adult entertainment business following his departure from the Christian faith.

As the Independent noted, the rapper shared a video on X that announced his "Yeezy Porn" was on the way.

Following this announcement, a former adult film star turned Christian, Brittni De La Mora, is pleading that West remember his time when he declared that Jesus is king.

Prophetic Dream: Angels at the White House Gates

The spiritual warfare taking place in our nation's capital is at a fevered pitch.

Recently, author Dutch Sheets shared a prophetic dream that his brother, Tim Sheets, had concerning the uprooting of Baal's roots that have taken hold of the White House.

In the dream, Sheets saw a massive angel, a soldier he explains, carrying a battering ram toward the White House grounds and asks the angel what he and the other three angels surrounding the building were doing.
