Mario Murillo Prophecies: 2023 Will Be a Massive Storm Followed by Massive Opportunity

2023 will be a massive storm followed by a massive opportunity. It is the day after Christmas, and we are preparing for a storm. They say that tonight it will drop below zero. Not only that, but strong winds will make the wind-chill feel like 22 below zero. The news is filled with emphatic warnings and advice.

They are warning us to be prepared. It will be dangerous to go outside. We must pay attention to our water pipes. We should have water and supplies in case the roads are impassible and the power goes out—how very foolish it would be for us not to listen.

Yet there is even worse foolishness that takes place among Christians when God warns us of a coming storm. Divine warnings are ignored and are called “negative; and not of faith.”

What if Jesus Had Never Been Born?

What if Christ had never been born? This provocative question is one most people likely give little attention to during a season when Jesus’ birth is a celebratory focal point.

But it’s a curiosity Dr. Jerry Newcombe, executive director of the Providence Forum, has unpacked over the years. Newcombe’s new film—aptly titled “What If Jesus Had Never Been Born?”—further explores how Christ’s birth transformed the world.

“There’s so many different ways in which Christ, through the church, has changed and impacted civilization,” he told CBN’s Faithwire. “There’s a reason that history is divided [by] ‘before Christ’ and ‘Anno Domini,’ in the year of the Lord.”

43 State Capitols Celebrate Christmas With Public Displays of the Savior’s Birth

Celebrations of the Savior’s birth are scheduled with 43 state capitol nativity scenes across America this Christmas. The Thomas More Society and the American Nativity Scene are helping a growing number of private citizen groups across the nation to display Biblical manger scenes on government property this Christmas. State capitols in Alaska, New York, Utah and Virginia are scheduled to feature the traditional display of the holy family with baby Jesus in the manger for the first time this year.

Ed O’Malley, President of the American Nativity Scene, observed, “In 2022 we are pleased to announce that 43 state capitol nativity scenes, the most to date, are scheduled to be erected at state capitols this Christmas season.”

“The message of hope delivered by the baby Jesus celebrates the joy of new life,” shared O’Malley. “This troubled world can benefit from more hope and more joy.” {eo}
