

Nancy DeMoss Mourns Beloved Husband Robert Wolgemuth in Heartbreaking Final Tribute

Revive Our Hearts ministry leader Nancy DeMoss is sharing one final tribute to her late husband, Robert Wolgemuth.

In a post on social media, DeMoss shared a photo of a note she wrote to Wolgemuth that said, "I love you so. Happy Christmas Eve!"

Late the night of Dec 23, I left this note for @rdwolgemuth to find when he got up for his early morning coffee.

He had not been feeling well. Early Christmas Eve morning, I took him to the ER, as he was in pain, struggling to breathe.

Soon, Wolgemuth passed away.

He declined quickly and within a few days was totally unresponsive. On Jan 10, I returned to our home a widow. That same day, Robert moved to his eternal Home, to find unending joy and rest with Christ.

I do love him so—more than I could have imagined being possible a decade ago. And I know this contented, grateful man is happier today than he ever dreamed of being on earth.

Despite the tears, DeMoss is rejoicing in the Lord, with gratitude for the time she had with her beloved husband.
