

Pat Robertson: Stock Market Crash is God's Judgment

Pat Robertson says he believes this week's stock market crashes are just a taste of God's judgement.

He says the financial shaking is due, in part, to the government's refusal to defund Planned Parenthood.

"Listen, that organization is an absolute monstrosity," Robertson says. "To take your money and my money which the government extorts from us every year in the form of taxation is nothing short of tyranny."

Robertson details his thoughts in a recent episode of the 700 Club. He points to President Barack Obama's vehement support of the abortion clinics and aligns Congressional decisions with how God will judge America.

Watch the video (start at the 11-minute mark) to hear his full comments.