

Phil Robertson Says Hillary Clinton Is Living Proof Satan Is the 'Father of Lies'

The Duck Commander founder and reality television star from the hit show Duck Dynasty, Phil Robertson, didn't mince words about his concerns for the 2016 presidential election, and liberals are losing their minds (again) over his comments.

"America needs to repent of its sin and turn back to God," he said in an interview to promote the new film he has narrated, Torchbearer. "It's a spiritual fix more than a political one. Our Founding Fathers warned us repeatedly to never let this day come, but the day has now come upon us."

He noted the Democratic Party "literally booed God out of the Democratic Party" during its 2012 presidential nominating convention. Democrats "not only ran Him out and took His name out of their platform," they booed Him out of the convention and platform.

"So you get what you ask for, so here we are," he said. "So the bottom line is, someone says, well, if you entertain the thought of maybe voting for Hillary Clinton, I said, they ran God out of the Democratic Party. She has a hard time telling the truth because the evil one is the father of lies, according to Jesus, and she's living proof of it, my man."
