Hallmark actress, Mamie Laverock, is "doing well" after she took a traumatic five-story fall.

Laverock's parents, Rob and Nicole posted an update on her GoFundMe page.

"Mamie is doing well comparatively to when she arrived," the page read. "Doing well because she has survived these extensive surgeries. She is enduring tremendous pain and continues to not give up. We can only hold onto the miracles of each day and continue to thank everyone for their prayers and marvel at the miracles of her story. Our daughter loves her life and love her family and is fighting hard everyday."

This update comes as just days ago the 19-year-old actress was on life support. On May 11, she went to the hospital for a "medical emergency." While she was there, she was taken out of a secure hospital unit. It was here that she was directed on a balcony pathway where she then plummeted five stories. The impact on Laverock's body was devastating, and she was placed on life support.

As Laverock continues to recover let's continue to lift her up in prayer and give God the thanks and glory He deserves for the continued healing of her body.
