

President Trump: 'America Is a Nation of Believers'

President Donald Trump used his weekly address to issue a statement of support for Jews and Christians alike and sent a powerful message to those who believe America is a secular state.

"America is a nation of believers," he said. "As families gather in houses of worship across the nation, we are grateful for the tremendous blessings of this land, our home. We have a beautiful country, and an abundant countryside, and an amazing people with a truly bright and wonderful future."

He went on to describe America's history of honoring the freedom to worship, and how radical Islamic terrorism is a threat to that freedom. Watch the entire address in the video above. {eo}
