

President Trump Pens Letter to Hostage Families on October 7 Anniversary

President Donald Trump wrote a letter to the Hostage and Missing Families Forum, thanking them for nominating him for the Nobel Peace Prize.

“Since the abhorrent events of October 7, 2023, that saw families ripped apart, children torn from their parents’ arms, and innocent people shot, killed, and raped, I have been resolved to returning all the hostages home, and ensuring the total destruction of Hamas so these horrific acts may never be repeated,” Trump wrote in the letter, adding that his “entire administration has been touched” by the families’ advocacy.

“We strongly urge you to award President Trump the Nobel Peace Prize because he has vowed he will not rest and will not stop until every last hostage is back home,” it adds. “His unprecedented achievements in peacemaking deserve this recognition. For our families, and for millions around the world affected by his efforts, this honor would affirm that determined leadership and bold action in service of peace are what truly matter in our world.”
