

Prophecy: We're in the Outer Bands of the Storm

Chinese doctors are seeing the coronavirus manifest differently among patients in its new cluster of cases in the northeast region compared to the original outbreak in Wuhan, suggesting that the pathogen may be changing in unknown ways and complicating efforts to stamp it out, according to Bloomberg.

This comes as no great surprise. Prophecies from many prophetic voices are beginning to play out right before our eyes. Some would argue end-times prophecies are part of the theater.

Let's do a quick rewind before we move forward.

During intercession at Awakening House of Prayer on March 20, I had a prophetic vision of the coronavirus splitting and mutating. The goal is to keep doctors scrambling to find new remedies for new strains of these pestilence. (You can watch the release and the prayer here.) Could this be COVID-20? The talk of COVID-20 dates back to April and is also no great surprise.

"People should not assume the peak has passed or let down their guard," Wu Anhua, a senior infectious disease doctor, said on state television on Tuesday. "It's totally possible that the epidemic will last for a long time."

In a recent USA Today story on Wednesday citing the U.S. cutting funds to a group studying bat viruses in China, Peter Daszak, director of EcoHealth Alliance, a group whose research warned of worse to come. "I'm really concerned about where this leaves us," Daszak told USA Today. "Once we've overcome COVID-19, what about COVID-20? What about COVID-21?"

China Hoarding Food and Oil

It seems China—the place from which the coronavirus originally escaped into the wild—has been and continues to brace for the worst. China is hoarding food and oil, according to news reports.

CNBC reported on Wednesday lockdowns and movement restrictions aimed at containing the coronavirus have triggered transportation and logistics bottlenecks—and those blockages have highlighted the vulnerability of global supply chains.

CNBC reports, “Fears of food shortage have come to the forefront of countries, both in developed and emerging economies.”

As I wrote on March 23, “Beyond plagues, the next sign of the times will be something that looks more like a famine, though temporary. I see a contamination coming to some of the food supply that will result in shortages in some areas, as well as sickness and deaths. People will rush to order online, putting strain on the overall food supply in unaffected areas.”
