

Ray Comfort: Atheists Swarming Like a Bunch of Nasty Bees

Atheists have attacked Ray Comfort's latest project with waves of negative reviews.

The Atheist Delusion, which disproves the anti-god philosophy with one scientific question, has a 3.5 star rating on IMDB.

"IMDb is the go-to place to rate movies. Millions will watch a movie by its star-rating," Comfort says. "Within the first 24 hours of its release, 61 atheists have rated it as a one-star movie. This pulls the average down to a 3 1/2 stars. That means to someone wanting to know, it's really bad. They have done this with most of our productions, but this one is going to be a real target because it disproves atheism with one scientific question. They are worried that people will watch it and realize the insane nature of atheism."

Atheists previously vehemently criticized Comfort's other projects, including Audacity.

But Comfort has a plan to combat the anti-Christian sentiment.

"So if you like (The Atheist Delusion), by all means vote. Just click on 'vote' (on IMDB). A one star is 'awful' and a ten star is 'excellent.' Thank you. BTW. Watch the atheists swarm in like a bunch of nasty bees, to try and pull it down."
