

Recent Celebrity Deaths Prove God Is the Only Source of Comfort, Peace

People around the world are mourning after this weekend's slew of celebrity deaths.

Kelly Preston (What A Girl Wants), succumbed to her private battle with breast cancer.

Naya Rivera's (Glee) missing body was recovered in a lake.

Ben Keough, Elvis Presley's grandson, committed suicide.

Though Rivera claimed to be a Christian, Preston and Keough both had strong ties to Scientology. I genuinely pray that each of these individuals found comfort with the Prince of peace before they died.

One of the deepest blessings in Christianity is God's promise of eternal life.

Revelation tells us, "He will wipe every tear from their eyes. There will be no more death or mourning or crying or pain, for the old order of things has passed away" (Rev. 21:4, NIV).

Christianity offers us a guarantee that we will be with Jesus after we die if we have a relationship with Him. No money, no connections, no strings attached—just faith by calling upon the name of the Lord. The reality is that if someone does not have a relationship with Jesus, they are damned to an eternity of misery.

Read the rest of this article at Movieguide®. Find out what God is doing in Hollywood! {eo}