

Rudy Giuliani: Hillary Clinton 'Looks Sick'

Former New York City Mayor Rudy Giuliani, during an appearance on FOX News Sunday, was asked to comment on recent reports on the health of Democratic presidential nominee Hillary Clinton.

"She has an entire media empire that constantly demonizes Donald Trump and fails to point out she hasn't had a press conference in 300 days—200 days—100 days—I don't know how long, fails to point out several signs of illness by her," the 2012 Republican presidential candidate told FOX News Channel's Shannon Bream. "All you gotta do is go online. Go online and put down 'Hillary Clinton illness,' take a look at the videos yourself."

He was asked Monday on FNC's FOX & Friends program to double-down on those comments, and the former mayor obliged.

"I think Hillary is tired. I do," he said. "When I saw Hillary at the press conference sitting down with the Democrat-appointed police chiefs, pretending she is pro-police, it was one of the most pathetic press conferences I've ever seen."

Co-host Steve Doocy asked, "What do you mean?"

"Well, first of all, she looks sick," Giuliani said. "No. 2, she looks completely uncomfortable saying anything pro-police. And number three, it was a complete joke, because she was surrounded by four or five Democratic-appointed, political police chiefs. We know—just go ask any cop, right out there—we know who the police are supporting."
